EUPHIX website launch

On Friday June 20 in Leiden, the Netherlands, the official launch symposium was held for the EUPHIX website prototype. EUPHIX is short for: European Union Public Health Information, Knowledge and Data Management System. The launch symposium was opened and chaired by Martin McKee, professor of European Public Health at the London School of Hygiene and Tropical Medicine. He pointed at the many relevant and desirable features of the EUPHIX system and its potential value for EU health policy making by providing the evidence base. Later, the Director of the Danish National Public Health Institute, Finn Kamper-Jorgensen, also illustrated the current achievements and future potential of EUPHIX, e.g. to also function as a platform for results from EU projects. He pointed, as often before, at the political necessity of a sustainable way to finance EU health monitoring activities, which is currently lacking. Later, Marc Sprenger, Director General of RIVM, the Dutch National Institute for Public Health and the Environment, officially 'launched' the EUPHIX website.

Partners in this EUPHIX project were representatives from national and regional public health institutes throughout the EU who have added expertise in the area of national and regional health monitoring and web-reporting. The EUPHIX project has been led in turn by RIVM's Peter Achterberg, Pieter Kramers and Hans van Oers.

The current EUPHIX website has a highly variable content, although not completely filled yet. It contains two sorts of texts: EUphact and EUphocus. Interestingly, EUPHIX also contains information on national and international health policies.

EUphacts are either texts plus indicators for a relatively small content area (one disease, one risk factor, one specific policy) or they contain indicator data sets only. For the EUphacts, the EUPHIX content maintains strong links to the EU Health Indicators (ECHI-shortlist). Interactive data tools have been included in EUPHIX with which data may be handled for optimal presentation needs.

EUpfocus contributions are addressing broader agenda-issues, such as 'mental health' or 'health inequalities'. Some of the EUpfocus texts are focusing on outcomes from EU projects. In this way EUPHIX may become a platform for EU health monitoring projects. DG Sanco's Health-EU Portal in the meantime has included various links to parts of the EUPHIX website.

With the launch of EUPHIX a prototype website is now in orbit that may become the backbone of a future health monitoring system for the EU. EUPHIX, moreover, also has major potential for teaching European public health. The EUPHIX website is found at: www.euphix.org

Global Smokefree Partnership

The Global Smokefree Partnership (GSP: www.globalsmokefreepartnership.org) is launching a campaign to strengthen global awareness and support for a strong and sustainable tobacco-free Olympics policy at the summer 2008 Olympic games in Beijing, China: www.smokefreeolympics.com

For this purpose, the GSP has developed an Open Letter to the International Olympic Committee (IOC) requesting the introduction of a compulsory 100% smokefree policy for all Olympic Games. GSP is now gathering signatures from international organisations working on health, sport and youth issues, before presenting the letter to the IOC.

European Child Safety Alliance EuroSafe

The European Child Safety Alliance and EuroSafe today launched a document entitled "Protecting children and youth in water recreation: safety guidelines for service providers" in cooperation with Commissioner of Consumers, Meglena Kuneva, and Chair of the Internal Market and Consumers Protection Committee, Arlene McCarthy. Drowning is the second leading cause of injury death to children in Europe. Children and youth are at increased risk of drowning or being injured in the water while on holiday. Yet according to the European Child Safety Alliance, most these injuries are preventable with basic safety measures that can be supported by water-related service providers. The press release, the document plus more information are available at:

HealthQuest final report

HealthQuest, the acronym standing for “Quality in and Equality of Access to Healthcare Services”, was a tender financed by the European Commission DG Employment, Social Affairs and Equal Opportunities and run by EHMA and the European Centre for Social Welfare Policy and Research. The study, carried out between January and December 2007, had three main purposes:

- To identify and analyse barriers of access to health care services which are faced by vulnerable groups in society, and especially those most exposed to social exclusion;
- To review the various policy initiatives taken by the Member States to realise the objective of access for all, including the analysis of good practice examples;
- To highlight and describe the most effective policy measures to ensure access to health care to the most disadvantaged (including a case study on people with mental health problems);
- To help to determine the extent to which increased access to and quality of health care services can make to combating poverty and social exclusion and increasing social inclusion.

The research focused on three vulnerable groups that are particularly affected by these barriers: older people, immigrants (including undocumented migrants and asylum seekers) and people with mental health disorders.

The main report as well as the summary are available at the European Commission's website.

Report: http://ec.europa.eu/employment\_social/spsi/docs/social\_inclusion/2008/healthquest\_en.pdf;
