

Resilience: definitions agree that...

Resilience is related to processes and skills that influence good individual and community health outcomes in spite of negative events, serious threats and hazards.

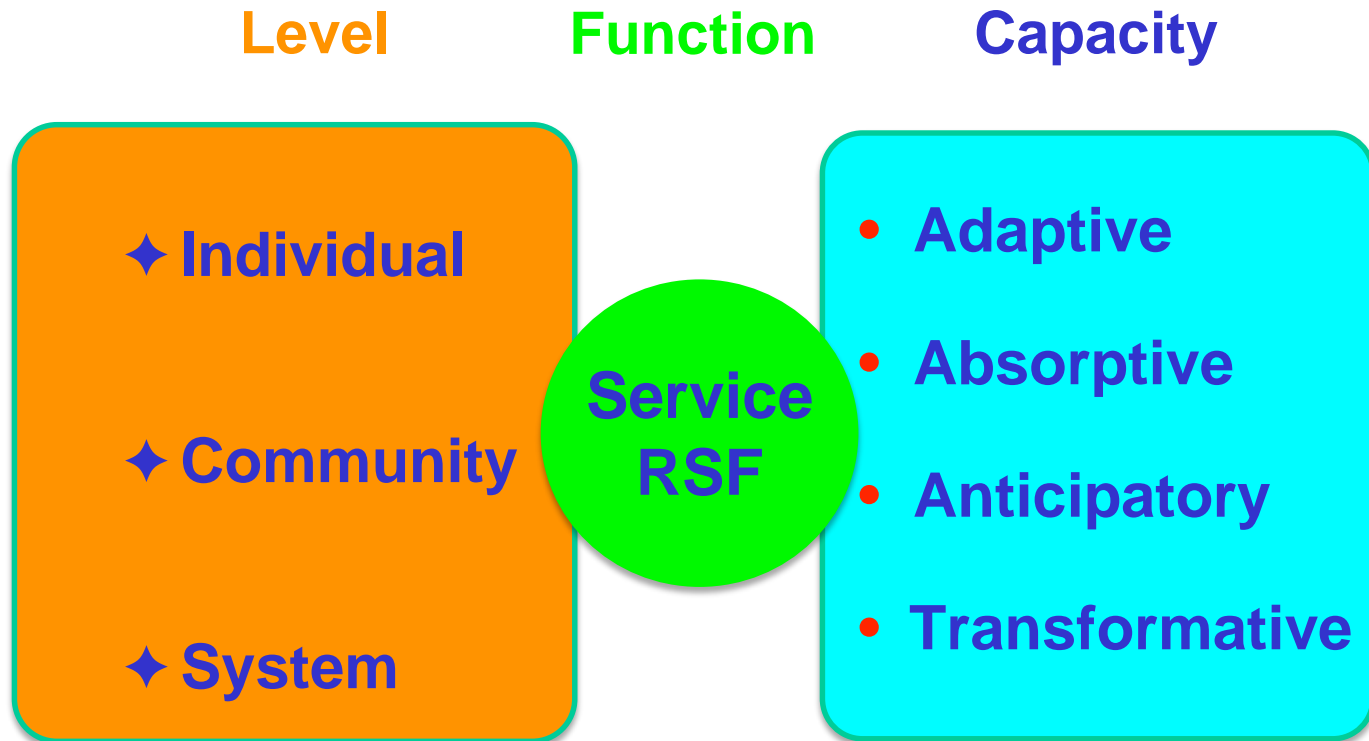

“Bouncing back from adversities”

Latest development....

- More and more interest on system-level resilience
- More and more policy sector think in terms of resilience

We can deploy a RSF in the design and delivery of PH programmes and services

Strengthening the 3 levels of resilience to avoid failures

...to help people to identify and negotiate the resources they need to do well in their life