PLENARY SESSION: BUILDING BRIDGES FOR MIGRATION IN A PLANETARY CONTEXT

Migration has significant implications for public health in Europe. Beyond potential pressures on healthcare systems, that can occur especially in instances of large scale rapid migration, some subgroups of migrants, particularly those forcibly displaced or those originating from countries with weak health systems are particularly vulnerable and susceptible to infections.

This may be due to the fact that they could come from countries with high prevalence of infectious diseases and/or low vaccine coverage. In addition, the migration journeys or substandard living conditions in overcrowded migrant centres may have increased the risk of contracting infections. This plenary session will discuss options for strengthening public health functions and services, the need for cross-sectoral cooperation and the importance of involving the affected population in decision-making. Speakers include:

- Khalid Koser (keynote speaker), Global Community Engagement and Resilience Fund
- Nada Ghosn (panellist), Ministry of Public Health, Lebanon
- Sally Hargreaves (panellist), Imperial College London, United Kingdom

The plenary session is organised by European Centre for Disease Prevention and Control and EUPHA Section Infectious diseases. Moderators: Karl Ekdahl (ECDC) and Michael Edelstein (EUPHA IDC)

Plenary sessions are organised in collaboration with our partners: EUPHA, EuroHealthNet, ASPHER, EHMA, European Observatory on Health Systems and Policies, European Centre for Disease Prevention and Control, European Commission, WHO Regional Office for Europe.
