PUBLIC HEALTH FOR THE FUTURE OF HUMANITY: ANALYSIS, ADVOCACY AND ACTION

In a series of eight plenary sessions we will explore how public health can contribute to the future of humanity. We look at what happened to our principles of the Enlightenment: evidence and reason. How can we work together with other sectors to tackle global threats? What does public health leadership entail? How can we improve the qualities of our health systems and workforce?

Plenary 'Making a difference' explores how research and evidence can (and should) play a bigger role in enabling implementation of public health policy. We will draw, in particular, from experiences with addressing the COVID-19 pandemic - the perfect public health storm. Are we effective knowledge brokers ensuring that research is translated into timely, transparent and evidence-informed policy response? Do we have enough understanding of the political economy of decision making and its inbuilt cognitive biases? Are we communicating evidence in policy actionable terms? How do we deal with social media and the 'infodemics' phenomenon? This exciting plenary is moderated by Josep Figueras and Luis Eugenio de Souza. Speakers are: Hans Kluge (WHO Europe), Richard Horton (The Lancet), Chris Murray (IHME) and Naomi Nathan (Young Professional). Friday 16 October, 18:00 – 19:00 CET.
