About the BSPH

The Berlin School of Public Health (BSPH) is a collaborative initiative of three universities in Berlin. Each of the partner institutions contributes its experience and expertise in the field of public health to the school's success. The board of directors along with dedicated faculty and staff ensure academic excellence and innovation in research.

Alice Salomon Hochschule Berlin (ASH),
Prof. Dr. Raimund Geene, Department of Health Education

Charité - Universitätsmedizin Berlin,
Prof. Dr. Dr. Tobias Kurth, Institute of Public Health (IPH)

Technische Universität Berlin (TU Berlin),
Prof. Dr. Reinhard Busse, Department of Health Care Management (MiG)

The BSPH offers a joint, state funded Master's degree program in Public Health that provides further education to graduates from a wide array of Bachelor programs. Additionally, the BSPH hosts executive (tuition fee based) degree programs in Epidemiology and third cycle doctoral degrees in Public Health can be earned at the TU Berlin (Dr. PH) and at the Charité (Dr. rer. med. and PhD in Health Data Sciences).

Innovative research in the field of public health is needed to assess the impact of and find solutions for current challenges such as climate change, emerging infectious diseases and achieving universal health coverage. Public health research must develop new models for sustainable health system funding and create healthy living environments in an increasingly ageing, urbanized world. The BSPH partner institutions have a wide array of research projects tackling these challenges.
