

EUPHA Law and public health section (EUPHA-LAW)

DRAFT Annual report 2023

Goals for 2023

The core aims for EUPHA-LAW this year were as follows.

- To continue defining the Section identity more clearly. EUPHA-LAW focuses on public health law and policy rather than healthcare law, with a particular (though not exclusive) emphasis on Europe.
- To increase Section membership. EUPHA-LAW is seeking to increase its membership through general and targeted messages. To this effect, we launched a members' survey at the end of September 2022 to help shape activities over the next year.
- To increase collaborations. To develop effective regulatory responses to complex public health challenges, EUPHA-LAW works with a variety of sub-disciplines in law and public health to help build greater legal capacity. We also acknowledge the imperative for both multi-disciplinary and multi-level responses, and have continued to develop collaborations with other EUPHA sections and external partners to increase the impact of our work.
- To continue focusing on two key themes of wide appeal. EUPHA-LAW has decided to continue developing the work it has started on two key themes: (1) strategic litigation, human rights and public health; and (2) trade and public health. These themes remain priority areas for lawyers interested in public health, whilst they also have a sufficiently broad remit to give coherence to our portfolios of activities without however preventing individual initiatives.

Collaboration with other sections

- Collaborations have been identified, initiated and/or strengthened with the Ethics, Food and Nutrition, Health Impact Assessment, Global Health, Sexual and Gender Minority Health, and Environment sections.

Activities at the European Public Health Conference 2023

- We have co-organised multiple events in conjunction with external partners and other Sections.
- Workshop: (Re)imagining food: representations of food to move towards more sustainable food cultures
- Round table: European Union policies: the basis for EU legislation and the case of the EU HTA regulation
- Workshop: Public health interventions to counteract unhealthy diets towards a better consumer knowledge
- Round table: The role of EU bodies and European Health Union policies, and implications for the Pandemic Treaty
- Round table: How can the public health community contribute to better alcohol policies through trade law?
- Round table: Legal determinants of health - what do (global) public health professionals need to know?
- Round table: Is public health possible when LGBTQI+ individuals are criminalised? A roundtable and call to action
- Round table: An exploration of the EAT Lancet Commission on healthy diets for sustainable food systems
- Round table: Food marketing regulation and civil society mobilisation

- Round table: Public health and climate change: a litigation toolkit for public health practitioners
- We have also been invited to contribute to a plenary session on the commercial determinants of health. We welcome this invitation firstly because we noted last year that the plenary sessions of the EPH in Berlin did not have enough content on such issues; and secondly in light of the focus of the conference – the theme of food environments being one in which the Section has been particularly active in these past three years.

Other activities

- Strategic Litigation and Public Health Conference, Liverpool, 15 and 16 June
  - This major conference explored how strategic litigation can contribute to the promotion of better health for all.
  - Hosted by the University of Liverpool, in conjunction with a variety of partners, including: the O’Neill Institute for National and Global Health Law at Georgetown University, the Centre for Health Law at the University of Groningen, the Law Centre for Health and Life at the University of Amsterdam, MCI, as well as the PETRA Network on Health and Trade, the UK Faculty of Public Health and ASPHER.
  - The event was funded by the University of Liverpool, EUPHA, the O’Neill Institute, the Law Centre for Health and Life, the Groningen Centre for Health Law.
  - The conference included a reception after the keynote lecture.
  - The conference was hybrid and attended by over xxx individuals.
  - Bursaries were given to early career researchers.
- Climate Change Litigation: A Guide for Public Health Professionals
  - The Section has led the development of this Guide, which will be launched at the European Public Health Conference in November 2023. Anticipated institutional signatories to the Foreword in the Guide include: FPH (UK), Aletta Jacobs School of Public Health, EUPHA, WFPHA, ASPHER, IANPHI, GNAPH, Global Consortium on Climate and Health Education at Columbia University, Lancet Countdown: Tracking Progress on Health and Climate Change (all to be confirmed).
- The Section continued to lead EUPHA’s work on front-of-pack nutrition labelling (FoPNL). We led the development of a EUPHA working group which issued a position statement on FoPNL in March 2023 calling on the EU to move forward with food labelling proposals. This led to authoring an editorial for the European Journal of Public Health (Volume 33, Issue 5, October 2023, Pages 751–752).
- The Section contributed to the development of a WFPHA / EUPHA statement on LGBTQI rights in May 2023 following legal developments in Uganda.
- World Congress on Public Health, Rome, May 2023
  - Members of the section attended the World Congress and submitted abstracts on legal aspects of public health. In particular, the Section organised the workshop: ‘How can the public health community support litigation to protect public health in the context of climate change and other environmental threats to health?’.
- The Section supported the development of the new section on global health.
- The section invited EUPHANxt to nominate a suitable early career individual to become a member of the Steering Committee

General communications with section members

- EUPHA-LAW has used the EUPHA monthly Newsletters to communicate with its members and other EUPHA members as needed.
- EUPHA-LAW has developed an open, online database (Google Sheets) to have a better overview of member and to encourage more engagement. More than 50 members have uploaded their data.
- A communications plan has also been developed, including the launch of a new Twitter account: @EUPHA_LAW.

- The EUPHA-LAW Section Steering Committee continues to explore ways to engage section members actively in the work of the section.

International participation in events on behalf of EUPHA

- All of our events are international and include speakers and delegates from across the world.
